

Secerno and Brookcourt Establish Partnership

Oxford, United Kingdom 9 May 2007 – Database security solutions provider, Secerno, and state of the art secure networking experts, Brookcourt Solutions, today announced a strategic reseller partnership between the two companies. As a Secerno reseller, Brookcourt will now be able to offer its customers Secerno's award-winning technology, to further enhance the Brookcourt portfolio of enterprise-class secure networking solutions.

Brookcourt is focused on delivering continuous service excellence and outstanding value for money, through the provisioning of tailored and secure networking solutions to fit customers' business requirements. By collaborating with the 'best in channel' services available on the market, Brookcourt ensures that the customer always receives the highest level of service, tailored to exact requirements, and economically priced.

Secerno will add a new dimension to Brookcourt's portfolio of secure networking solutions, because it has pioneered the most advanced and most intelligent database security solution in the world. For the first time, Secerno empowers organisations to effectively protect their data from both internal and external threats, including all SQL injection attacks.

Phil Higgins, Executive Partner, Brookcourt commented; "Like Secerno, Brookcourt Solutions adopt a fresh approach to security. We look forward to partnering with Secerno and working towards minimising threats in this forever evolving and challenging environment"

Paul Davie, CEO, Secerno added; "We are very delighted to be working with Brookcourt Solutions. Organisations are desperate for intelligent security solutions that protect them from the new breed of security threats and breaches, and we are very confident that Secerno and Brookcourt can together deliver the highest levels of protection in the most efficient manner possible."
